

Client Privacy Notice

About this notice

The Data Protection Act 2018 (“DPA”) and the UK General Data Protection Regulation (“UK GDPR”) provide a framework for UK data protection legislation following the exit of the UK from the EU. Guernsey’s current data protection legislation has been enacted to mirror GDPR and is set out in The Data Protection (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2017, as amended (the “DP Law”).

This Privacy Notice is intended to ensure that the client, including where applicable the client’s individual directors, officers, employees and/or owners (“you”, or “your”) are aware of how Longview Partners (Guernsey) Limited and Longview Partners LLP (“we”, “us” or “our”) may collect personal data, what is collected, what we use it for and with whom we share it in accordance with DPA and the DP Law. Please provide a copy of this Privacy Notice to those individual directors, officers, employees and/or owners whose personal data we may process.

“Personal data” means any information relating to you but does not include data where you can no longer be identified from it such as anonymised aggregated data.

We will be joint data controllers in respect of your relationship with us as a client. A data controller is responsible for deciding how to hold and use personal data about you. We may process your personal data ourselves or through others acting as data processors on our behalf.

We may provide supplemental privacy notices on specific occasions when we are collecting or processing personal data about you so that you are fully aware of how and why your personal data is being used. These supplemental notices should be read together with this Privacy Notice.

If you have any questions about this Privacy Notice you can contact clientservices@longview-partners.com.

What information do we collect about you and what do we use it for?

Personal data held by us or on our behalf may include, but is not necessarily limited to, your name, residential address, place of business, email address, other contact details, corporate contact information, signature, nationality, country of residence, place of birth, date of birth, tax identification, tax jurisdiction, employment and job history, education details, regulatory status, credit history, correspondence records, call records, passport number, bank account details, certain financial information contained within KYC documents, source of funds, and details relating to your investment activity or preferences.

The purposes for which we may collect, store and use personal data about you and the ‘lawful basis’ for processing such data are set out in the table below. The law specifies certain ‘lawful bases’ for which we are allowed to use your personal data.

Purpose	Lawful basis for processing

To provide client relations in respect of your account including provision of periodic reporting, fee invoicing, seeking consent for changes to terms and for other corporate governance purposes.	The performance of your contract with us as a client. Compliance with applicable legal and regulatory obligations.

In addition to the uses above, please note that we may also process your information where required by law to do so or if we reasonably believe that it is necessary to protect our rights and/or to comply with judicial or regulatory proceedings, a court order or other legal process.

Special categories of personal data

There are more limited bases for processing special category personal data. This is personal data which reveals or contains racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious and philosophical beliefs, trade union membership, genetic data, biometric data, health data, sex life and sexual orientation.

We do not intend to actively collect special category data about you. Whilst we will use reasonable efforts to limit our holding of such data, please be aware that we may hold such data incidentally. For example, where:

- you volunteer special category data to us or one of our processors, such as if you send us an email containing special category data;
- documents gathered for legal / regulatory purposes contain special category data, such as a passport copy which references ethnic origin or a due diligence search from public sources which includes special category data.

Should any such data unwittingly come into our possession we will immediately delete it once identified.

What if you do not provide the personal data requested?

In some circumstances, if you do not provide us with certain information when requested, we may be limited or restricted in our ability to deal with you and may in some cases be prevented from complying with our legal obligations. When setting up a segregated account with us and where we require your personal information to comply with anti-money laundering or other legal requirements, failure to provide this information means we may not be able to accept you or retain you as a client.

Change of purpose

We will only use your personal data for the purposes for which we collected it (as identified above in the ‘Purpose’ column), unless we reasonably consider that we need to use it for another reason which is compatible with the original purpose. If we need to use your personal data for an unrelated purpose, we will notify you and we will explain the legal basis which allows us to do so.

How is this information collected?

We typically collect personal data about you when you provide information to us in writing, electronically, or by phone. For instance, these could be through discussions or email correspondence with you about the transactions undertaken on your behalf or the account positions. As another example, we record certain phone lines for regulatory reasons and could obtain personal data through this means.

In addition, we may receive personal information about you from third parties, such as:

- public sources or information vendors;
- your legal, financial, tax or other professional advisers;
- your consultant.

With whom will your information be shared?

We may share your personal data with a third party for the purposes described above where this is required by law, where it is necessary to perform our contract with you, or where we have another legitimate interest in doing so.

We may need to share your personal data with:

- other entities within our group as part of our regular reporting activities in company performance, in the context of a business reorganisation or group restructuring exercise or for assistance in relation to marketing and business development;
- professional advisers including lawyers, bankers, auditors and insurers to the extent such information is relevant to their performance of their services;
- regulators;
- tax authorities;
- trading counterparties;
- any of our service providers where such information is relevant to their performance of such services.

We may share your personal data with third parties, for example in the context of the possible sale or restructuring of the business. We may also need to share your personal data with a regulator or to otherwise comply with applicable law or judicial process or if we reasonably believe that disclosure is necessary to protect our rights and/or to comply with judicial or regulatory proceedings, a court order or other legal process.

International Transfers

As Longview Partners (Guernsey) Limited is domiciled in Guernsey and Longview Partners LLP is domiciled in the UK, any personal data that we collect about you will be processed in Guernsey and the UK in order for us to perform our contract with you and/or otherwise correspond with you or provide the information you have requested. Guernsey, the UK and the EEA are considered to have the same standard of data protection laws.

We may transfer the personal data we collect about you to Canada because this is the location of our email archiving solution. Canada is considered an “adequate” country in respect of data protection laws, recognised as offering an adequate level of data protection. If you require further information about this you can request it from clientservices@longview-partners.com.

Longview does not transfer personal data to countries outside the EEA, the UK, Guernsey and Canada.

How long will your information be retained?

We will retain your personal data for as long as necessary to fulfil the purposes for which it was collected, including for the purposes of satisfying any legal, regulatory, accounting or reporting requirements and our legitimate interests in maintaining such personal information in our records. This will normally include any period during which we are dealing or expect to deal with you and what we consider to be a suitable period thereafter for our internal record-keeping purposes. In doing this we will have regard to the amount, nature, and sensitivity of the personal data, the potential risk of harm from unauthorised use or disclosure of your personal data, the purposes for which we process your personal data and whether we can achieve those purposes through other means, and the applicable legal requirements. Generally, we will keep information relevant to our dealings with you for at least seven years following the termination of your account with us.

After the relevant retention period has expired, personal data may be permanently deleted in accordance with the terms of the Records Retention Policy.

Accuracy of information

It is important that the personal data we hold about you is accurate and current. Please let us know if your personal data which we hold changes during your relationship with us.

Your rights in relation to your information

You have rights as an individual which you can exercise in relation to the information we hold about you under certain circumstances. These rights are to:

- request access to your personal data (commonly known as a “data subject access request”) and request certain information in relation to its processing;
- request rectification of your personal data;
- request the erasure of your personal data;
- request the restriction of processing of your personal data;
- object to the processing of your personal data; and
- request the transfer of your personal data to another party.

In exercising your rights above, you may be required to terminate your account.

If you want to exercise any of these rights, please contact us at clientservices@longview-partners.com. You also have the right to make a complaint at any time to a supervisory authority for data protection issues.

Fees

You will not usually have to pay a fee to access your personal data (or to exercise any of the other rights). However, we may charge a reasonable fee should we deem your request for access to be manifestly unfounded or excessive. Alternatively, we may refuse to comply with the request if it is found to be manifestly unfounded or excessive.

What we may need from you

We may need to request specific information from you to help us confirm your identity and ensure your right to access the information (or to exercise any of your other rights). This is another appropriate security measure to ensure that personal data is not disclosed to any person who has no right to receive it.

Right to withdraw consent

In the limited circumstances where you may have provided your consent to the collection, processing and transfer of your personal data for a specific purpose, you have the right to withdraw your consent for that specific processing at any time. To withdraw your consent, please contact clientservices@longview-partners.com. Once we have received notification that you have withdrawn your consent, we will no longer process your information for the purpose(s) to which you originally consented unless we now have an alternative legal basis for doing so.

Changes to this privacy notice

We reserve the right to update this Privacy Notice at any time and will make an updated copy of such Privacy Notice available to you and notify you when we make any substantial updates. We may also notify you in other ways from time to time about the processing of your personal data.
